

Denyce Carter
Chairperson 2024

NCMA Board

Former Vice President of Contracts and Purchasing at General Atomics, Ms. Denyce Carter brings a wealth of experience and expertise to her role as the Board Chairperson for the National Contract Management Association (NCMA) Program Year 2024. With her remarkable career spanning decades in the field of contracts and procurement, Ms. Carter has made significant contributions to the industry and is widely respected for her knowledge and leadership.

During her tenure at General Atomics, a global leader in high-technology systems, she played a pivotal role in overseeing commercial and government contracts and procurements. Her responsibilities included managing complex acquisitions, developing policies and procedures, and ensuring compliance with U.S. Government procurement laws and regulations. Ms. Carter also chaired the Cybersecurity Working Group, highlighting her commitment to addressing emerging challenges in the digital landscape.

Ms. Carter's dedication to the contract management profession extends beyond her role at General Atomics. As a long-time member of the NCMA, she has actively contributed to the growth and development of the association. Her involvement has included serving as Vice-Chair of the Aerospace Industries Association's Contract Management Committee, chairing the NCMA's Subcontract Management Forum in 2016, and participating as a panelist in several Government Contract Pricing Summits.

Now, as the Board Chairperson for the NCMA, Ms. Carter continues to champion the interests of contract management professionals. Her leadership is instrumental in shaping the association's strategic direction, advocating for industry standards, and promoting professional development opportunities.
