

Brandon J. Burket, MHA
Vice President
Orlando Health Network

Brandon Burket oversees the strategy and operations of our value-based care and population health activities, including the management of commercial and federal accountable care organizations (ACOs) and various bundled payments of care programs. In this role, he leads the ongoing development, operations and governance of the Orlando Health Network, which is Central Florida's largest and highest-performing clinically integrated network (CIN) and works to establish and expand networks in emerging service areas.

Previously, Brandon was assistant vice president of population health and value-based care at Orlando Health. Since joining Orlando Health in 2013, he has served in multiple positions within the physician enterprise, advancing the organization's strategic planning efforts, leading clinical transformation pursuits, and overseeing network models of care.

After earning a bachelor's degree in health science and a master's degree in health administration, both from the University of Florida in Gainesville, Brandon completed an administrative fellowship at Tampa General Hospital. He is a member of the American College of Healthcare Executives.
